

OUR MISSION

It is human nature to want to see something before purchasing. With home decor that is difficult - more and more sales are going online and the in-store experience doesn't provide a way to truly see the furniture in one's home. The only way to actually see a home fully furnished is to buy all the items and move it into the house.

The Coohom team believes that technology changes this. By bridging design, art, and technology, people are able to see what they will get. Software ensures that every home design doesn't require countless hours and many trips to scope out, purchase, return, and buy different items. By using Coohom, people will be able to see how something will look, before ever making a single purchase. This brings about a win-win situation - brands have fewer returns and more satisfied customers and homeowners are able to bring a space to life, just the way they visualized it within a shorter time frame.

With Coohom, what you see is what you get.
